

Author

Khasnabis, Chapal (Geneva CH)
World Health Organization

Title

Global cooperation on Assistive Technology (GATE)

Coauthors

None

Summary

The availability of assistive technology (AT) for many people is to remain healthy, independent and productive. It is also a pre-condition for inclusion and equal participation of people with disabilities in the society. The need for AT is on the increase due to a growing prevalence of disability, the rise in non-communicable and musculoskeletal conditions and increase in injuries for example from road traffic crashes, violence and falls and above all, the emerging ageing population.

Introduction

-

Methods

-

Results

-

Conclusion

-

References

-