JUNIOR – range of orthoses for paediatric use

The new JUNIOR range of orthoses from albrecht (Stephanskirchen, Germany) is dedicated to finding appropriate paediatric treatments for children. The company will be exhibiting a number of products for this segment at OTWorld. These include, amongst others, their CDS[®] 'Nano-joint' for dynamic correction, which will be available immediately after the show on a customised-design basis. This product is used in orthotic therapy in a variety of ways, from limiting movement to controlled dynamic traction. It can be employed in the same range of circumstances as the 90° and 360° CDS[®] joints. Other items from their orthotic range for children that can be seen in Leipzig include the dynamic knee brace Jack PCL, which relieves the rear cruciate ligament, as well as products from the MKS[®] range of back supports. Moreover, the company will be introducing their Hypex[®] Lite knee brace and their Elbo-track elbow brace with smaller mouldings and a smaller joint.
