Inail

Research findings in prosthetics and rehabilitation

The Italian Institute for Insurance against Workplace Accidents and Occupational Diseases will be showcasing innovative aids and equipment that have resulted from research work in prosthetics and rehabilitation.

The Centro Protesi Inail is an institution run by the Institute, which has been working on the rehabilitation of injured employees since 1961. This, according to Inail, pursues a holistic approach and looks at individuals as an integral whole – both in functional and in psycho-social terms. The centre is, therefore, the only Italian institution that combines rehabilitation procedures and training in the use of orthopaedic aids with the manufacture of individually customised and technically advanced prostheses. The centre also undertakes extensive experimental work and applied research.
