Ofa Bamberg GmbH:

Fashion-conscious compression and new bandages for sportsmen and women

The fashionable colours of the 2018 Memory Collection that Ofa Bamberg (Bamberg, Germany) are showcasing at OTWorld go by names like lilac, peony pink, ice flower and gentian. Their elegant medical compression stockings can be obtained off-the-shelf or made to measure and are available in compression classes 1 and 2.

Ofa Bamberg have given their Lastofa collection of universal medical compression stockings a makeover. This all-rounder for both men and women has been updated with the aim of ensuring 'even greater comfort'. According to the company, more than 300 users have trialled the new Lastofa range and are, we are told, more than happy with the look, fit and comfort of its new qualities. These unisex models covering compression classes 1 and 2 are suitable for wearers with advanced vein disorders or very weak connective tissue.

Ofa subsidiary Push (Nea International) have added their new specialist bandages to the OTWorld list under the Push Sports label – including the Kicx ankle support, developed specially for the football field. It gives players protection against ankle sprain and allows free foot roll-off. The range of support bandages has been developed in collaboration with sports doctors and athletes for knees, ankles, hands and elbows and can be used to treat acute injury or it can be used preventatively. Its slender shape offers precise support for dynamic movement.
