Solor GmbH

High-quality sockets and basic components for orthopaedic shoemakers

The new 'Raffael' socket from Solor (Pirmasens, Germany) combines suede leather and printed fabric. Thanks to the possibility of individual printing of the material, there are hardly any limits to artistic design. Because of the few seams it uses, this model is particularly suitable for diabetics, as pressure points are, therefore, avoided.

The socket is one of the 100 new developments of which the company will be providing details in Leipzig. The Solor name stands for 'reliable orthopaedics'; their expertise lies in producing high-quality sockets. In addition, the company offers everyone else the requisite basic components for individualised shoe manufacture. Altogether, their current catalogue lists over 600 models of socket.
